

MAP Activity Worksheet: Designing with Animals

We see animal designs used in everyday articles all around us. Sometimes they're decorative – like this carpet from the MAP collection with zebras. At other times though, the animal designs are very creatively and imaginatively merged or integrated into the design of the objects themselves. Like in these examples:

A teapot handle becomes a snake

A cutter takes the shape of a peacock

Now it's your turn to try your hand at designing and turning objects into animals!

What animal forms would be best suited for these objects of use? Remember, the utility of the object must not be compromised – so a clock must still show time easily and a pot should still be able to carry water. Let your imagination fly and turn these objects from the MAP collection into animal shapes!

A cot leg

A table clock
